A combination of quick ground and a following wind contributed to a time 1. 75 seconds under standard, but clearly the pace was fast. This was a fair handicap. The strong gallop suited UNCLE FRED, who was held up last of all for much of the way under a well-judged ride from Jim Crowley. Apparently the winner was expected to need the run, his first for 187 days, and his main target is said to be the Flat v Jump Jockeys handicap at Sandown on April 24. Yes Chef, back up in trip and returned toturf, is not straightforward and didn't convince he was knocking down for pressure, despite having the race run to suit. Strictly from a form perspective, though, this was a solid effort. Ellemujie gained his latest win over 1m4f on Polytrack, but he has plenty of useful form under these conditions and ran successfully after a 152-day absence. Guilded Warrior, returning from a 161-day break, has won when fresh and was 1lb lower than when successful over C&D last June, but it seems he went off too fast. First Port had conditions to suit and better could have been expected, while Kingsdine, who had been off for 255 days, shaped as though this was needed, being eased once held. Kilburn paid for chasing the strong pace.

Quite a competitive little handicap but the market suggested a big run was on the cards from KAY GEE BEE, who was having his first start for Richard Fahey, and he justified the confidence. It looked like Kay Gee Bee wasn't going to get to long time leader Rezwaaan going into the final furlong but he kept grinding away as the leader got tired to get up close home in determined style. Well-handicapped on last seasons form, the seven-year-old, who looked particularly fit for this return, was dropping into this class of race for the first time in four years, and it proved just the ticket. He's unlikely to take up his engagement at Ripon on Saturday as connections will now wait and see what the handicapper does with him. Edgewater was able to race off a stone lower than 12 months ago and he finished his race well to step up on some reasonable all-weather efforts last month. He'll do better again in a stronger run contest and could be ready to strike again. The combination of a 14lb higher mark and two-grade class rises proved too much for Rezwaaan to overcome. He took the field along and looked to have stolen it in the straight but got tired in the closing stages and was collared. On this evidence he's equally as effective on turf as Polytrack. It's debatable whether Baylini is as well suited to grass as all-weather (only 1-27 on turf), but she ran well here, staying on well down the middle of the track. The front four were well clear of Lockantanks whose record also suggests he's better on an artificial surface. Nothing else got involved.

A fair handicap, although it paid to race prominently with CONO ZUR making the most of being able to dominate. He was turned out relatively quickly after his narrow defeat at Pontefract the previous week, with his connections understandably expecting a further weight rise, and he was defying a mark 5lb higher than when successful at Haydock on his reappearance. He can be competitive off higher ratings, particularly when able to get his own way in front. Doctor Zhivago, dropped in trip, kept onfrom further back than the winner and third-placed runner but was always being held. Both his wins to date were gained on Fibresand - on the only two occasions he's raced on that surface. There was no obvious excuse for Elijah Pepper. This looks about as good as he is for now. Fibs And Flannel never threatened following a sluggish start, but this was probably a slight improvement on the form he showed on his reappearance and he could do better again next time. Sunnyside Tom was neverseriously involved, but he had been off for around six months. His last five wins have been gained in claimers. Spying dropped out tamely and remains winless since his 2-y-o days.

stable at Newcastle lastmonth and looked a likely winner 2f out, but he folded tamely. He didn't appear to get the trip and the suspicion is that the ground may have been a shade too soft for him. Lord Raglan, who helped set the pace with Scarab, was happier on this ground but, having travelled well, he dropped away quickly. He may have needed this, his second run of the season. Scarab set the pace but ran out of gas early in the straight and appears to have lost his way. The same sentiments apply to Antoniola, who was equipped with headgear for the first time. He missed the break and never got in a serious blow.

A decent handicap and the form should stand up. JUST BOND was 3lb lower than when runner-up in this race last year and also closely matched with Aquarian Spirit on Redcar running last month. Switched off out the back early, he made his effort smoothly against the inside rail over 2f out and was briefly in danger of not getting through, but an inviting gap appeared just when he needed it and he made no mistake. Cheers For Thea had a fine season last term, but was pulled up on her final startand showed nothing on her return. However, she travelled like a dream here and looked the likely winner when produced on the bridle over 1f out, but the winner pulled out that much more in the run to the line. At least this effort shows that she is back. Aquarian Spirit was put up 2lb for his successful reappearance at Redcar last month and was again given a positive ride, but despite doing little wrong, he was collared around half a furlong out. Hail Promenader, put up 6lb for narrowly beating a subsequent winner at Pontefract last month, came off the bridle approaching the last 2f and could only plug on once switched to the wide outside. Ailsa Craig scored three times last summer and ran well for a long way until tiring as though lack of a recent run took its toll. She has no great record fresh, so can be expected to come on for it. Elijah Pepper had put in a string of consistent efforts in defeat since winning twice in the autumn, but despite holding every chance, he eventually folded inside the last furlong and the handicapper seems to have him nailed to the carpet at present. Handsome Falcon may have been 1lb wrong", but he was still 2lb lower than when narrowly beaten over 7f here eight days earlier. However, he pulled far too hard on the outside of the field early and ruined his chance as a result.

A fair 3-y-o handicap, run at a solid pace. The form should work out with the joint favourites coming clear. CLUB OCEANIC took his career total to 2-4 with a game effort on this first outing on turf. He was narrowly beaten in third on his handicap/seasonal debut at Kempton last month and connections reached for first-time cheekpieces here. He was last off the bridle in the home straight and, with the step up in trip to his liking, always just had the measure of the runner-up when it mattered. The headgear appeared to have the desired effect and there ought to be more to come from this lightly raced colt over this sort of distance. Tropical Beat was keen over 1m at Ascot last time, but still stayed on well there and looked sure to enjoy thisextra furlong. He is clearly somewhat tricky as he had two handlers in the preliminaries and proved a bit edgy. He again took time to settle early on, and failed to handle the turn for home that well. His rider also needed to get stuck into him as the tempo got serious, but he still finished strongly, just finding one too good again. There is little doubt he remains capable of better if maturing along the right lines, and an even stiffer test may now prove ideal. The returning Mutayaser raced off the pace and on the inside, which resulted in him having to wait for his challenge in the home straight. He still had every chance if good enough, but was held by the first pair before the gap closed inside the final furlong and he didn't appear all that comfortable late on. This lightly raced maiden has begun life in handicaps on a fair mark and is entitled to improve a deal for the run, so he shouldn't be long in opening his account. He too should get further as the season develops. It was surprising to see Persian Herald stepping up in distance after his first attempt over 1m at Windsor 16 days earlier. Ridden to get the trip, he again ran a little free and never threatened. He finished okay, though, and clearly gets at least 1m. Coax, narrowly off the mark at Beverley last time out, was up 3lb but raced from just out of the handicap. He was given an aggressive ride over the longer trip and proved a sitting duck from 3f out. Dropping back a furlong looks on the cards. Kalahaag was having her first outing at Goodwood since winning her maiden at the course last year and met some support back up in trip. She travelled well enough just off the pace, but couldn't quicken and will surely get some needed respite from the handicapper now. The disappointment was Askaud, who was 6lb higher for finishing a clear second-best to Beatrice Aurora (winner of the next race on the card, a Listed Oaks trial) over 1m here on her comeback 13 days previously. She came under the pump around 3fout and was beaten before the extra furlong became an issue. Perhaps she "bounced" as this was too bad to be true.

Chased leader until ridden over 3f out, soon weakened, tailed off (op 14-1)

A decent fillies´ handicap, involving a number of unexposed types. It was run at a good pace and there was a tight finish. SUBMISSION put up an eye-catching reappearance fourth behind Beatrice Aurore in a 1m Goodwood handicap, where she found trouble and wasn´t given a hard time. Very heavily backed, she travelled enthusiastically out wide and showed some battling qualities to just hold off a fast finisher and add to her Kempton maiden win last September. It was hard work in the end and she still needs to learn to settle a bit better, but there could be quite a bit more to come from this Ribblesdale entry who is bred to be well suited by 1m2f-1m4f. Imaginary World couldn´t deliver when 5lb well in at Sandown last time, but she finished fastand was just denied off a reassessed mark. Her only success from 16 starts came in an AW claimer, but she has raised her form a few notches this spring and should be able to gain compensation for this near-miss behind a progressive rival. Adaria ran down a faltering favourite in a four-runner 1m Doncaster maiden before a creditable 6l sixth at 66-1 behind smart Theyskens´ Theory in a Listed race at York last time. The downside of that run was that her mark shot up 11lb, but that didn´t stop her putting in a brave front-running bid on her handicap debut. Cetrul stormed clear to justify an avalanche of support at Newcastle last time. She gave it a fair shot off effectively 3lb higher under her penalty, but couldn´t hang in there in this stronger race. Doricemay, a 12-1 winner under a prominent ride in a 7f Goodwood maiden last month on her second start, was caught out when the pace lifted before staying on again on her handicap debut. This Cape Cross filly has some stamina on her dam´s side and may appreciate another step up in trip, and a switch back to slower ground.

This looked a competitive race on paper, but there was good support for BARREN BROOK and the money proved well placed as he came home a comfortable winner, and that despite racing very keenly through the early stages of the race. He´d caught the eye at Thirkst last time when staying on late having blown the start and, up a furlong and off a mark 5lb lower than when last successful, he won with plenty in hand. He´s probably up to defying a higher mark, and the stronger the pace the better he´ll be as it´ll help him settle. Negotiation was dropped in from stall 15, saved ground the whole way round and was given every chance. It was a good ride on a gelding who is already due to be dropped 2lb, and he´ll be entitled to respect if making a quick reappearance. Count Bertoni, drawn out in stall 16, raced wider than ideal around the turn and performed with credit considering he was competing off a career-high mark. One Scoop Or Two ran well, but he´s likely to remain vulnerable off thissort of mark. Gala Casino Star, who had an excuse at Ayr last time, bounced back with a solid effort off a 4lb higher mark than when successful at Hamilton. Ours, detached in last through the early stages, came with his usual late run but couldn´t quite make the places. The harder they go up front the better it is for him. Spavento, patiently ridden out the back, didn´t seem to see out this slightly longer trip. Moheebb, well drawn, had a nice trip on the rail to the turn in, but was only one-paced under pressure. He was 3lb well in at the weights here, so things won´t get any easier in the short term.

This was competitive enough for the grade. It was run at something of an uneven pace, though. UNKNOWN REBEL pulled his way to the front and just had enough left in reserve at the finish to make all. He was 4lb higher than when getting off the markfor the season at Beverley over 1m2f last time, but his rider´s claim negated that and she got the fractions just right out in front. Another rise will make things tougher, but he´s clearly in top form as he showed a cracking attitude here. Nicola´sDream relished the rising finish and only just missed out on a career-first success. Connections look to be getting the key to her now and she shouldn’t be long in winning. The lightly raced One Pursuit took an age to pick up for pressure, but was motoring on the climb for home and this was an eye-catching effort. It was only his second run on turf and, despite his pedigree suggesting speed, he looks to be crying out for a stiffer test. Glenluji pulled his way into the handy position 3f out, just as the winner began to kick for home, and this was his most encouraging run of the season. Carrowbeg got across from the outside stall and was upsides the winner 3f out, but lacked any sort of gear change.

The two market leaders pulled clear in this decent handicap which was run at a fairly steady pace. WATCH AMIGO was keen early on stepped back up to 1m and things didn’t look very promising when he pulled his way into what looked a reluctant lead, but he showed tremendous determination to fight off his main market rival under a powerful ride by Kieren Fallon. This fourth career win on his 12th start will force him up in grade but this lightly raced 5-y-o could elevate his form another notch or two,particularly when settling better off a stronger pace. Viva Vettori finished well from off the steady pace but was just denied by the gritty front-running winner. He is 0-20 on turf but has nearly got his timing right on his last two turf runs and should be closing in on a first win on grass. Labore is feasibly treated off 5lb higher than when beating a subsequent five-time winner on nursery debut at Wolverhampton in November and the drop back to 1m looked a positive, but he couldn’t live with the first two after looking a threat 2f out. West End Lad could only plug on after getting outpaced. He is a prolific winner but has looked out of sorts since a comfortable success at Wolverhampton in November. Muhandis was an odds-on winner of a 1m Brighton maiden last month, but he was a well beaten last of six on 1m2f handicap debut next time and was very laboured with blinkers tried here.

The ground was changed to “soft” before this race. A useful handicap in which a decent gallop steadied before halfway before picking up again over a quarter of a mile from home. The field again raced far side and the first three pulled clear. WHISTLE ON BY is a reliable yardstick who got a good tow into the race and ran as well as he ever has done returned to a soft surface. He is a good guide to the worth of this form and should continue to give a good account. Ree’s Rascal, up 4lb for a good run at Sandown (form worked out well) last time, ran creditably, despite hanging right under pressure, on this first run on a soft surface. While he has little margin for error from this mark, he’s a strong traveller who should be better suited by quicker ground and he should continue to run well. Profondo Rosso, again visored, had the run of the race and ran creditably after meeting trouble, but his main problem was that he lacked a change of gears at a crucial stage. He’ll be suited by the return to 1m2f and remains capable of winning a handicap, especially in similar conditions. That trio finished clear of Orientalist, who has slipped to a fair mark but who wasn’t disgraced on ground that looked softer than ideal. The return to quicker ground will suit, but he’ll have to show a bit more before he’s a solid betting proposition. Similar comments apply to Barista, who was nibbled at in the market but was again below the form that saw him win twice over 7f in testing ground last autumn. Malice Or Mischief didn’t improve for the switch to soft ground and this run is best forgotten, something that also applies to Laughing Jack, who floundered in the conditions on this handicap debut dropped a fair way in distance. This wasonly his fourth race and he’s worth another chance. The vet reported that Buzzfix was struck into.

A wide-open contest in which the top weight was rated 80. ARABIAN STAR, 2lb lower than when fourth at Epsom a month earlier, took advantage of that slight easing in his mark. He raced under the far-side rail in the home straight and, although strongly pressed by the second and third, held on gamely. He looked happier on this conventional track than he had on Epsom’s switchback. Above All, dropped in trip after a sound third over 1m2f at York last time, appeared to benefit from the shorter distance. Another close to the speed from the outset, he battled away steadfastly through the closing stages. Levitate, fitted with a first-time visor after two quite encouraging runs this term, was ridden very patiently. Last turning for home, he was brought wide of those racing under the far rail and mounted a challenge from the 1f marker. He did not quicken as much as seemed likely, though, and was readily held in the dying strides. Twice Bitten, below par on his two previous outings this term, ran a great deal better here. He plugged on gamely in the closing stages, although didn’t entirely convince he wants more than 1m. Prince Of Burma, racing from the same mark as when second at Haydock in May, was a little below that level in this event. Planet Waves, 3lb lower than when sixth at Sandown last time out, was unable to take advantage of the handicapper’s minor generosity. He made up a little late ground, without being unduly knocked about, but never threatened to trouble the principals. QUOTES: Part-owner George Smith: "That’s the way Arabian Star needs to be ridden. He won the last time he got a ride like that. ".

A fair handicap run at a steady pace initially, but though the winner dictated and the order barely changed throughout, he still left the impression he was the best horse on the day. SALIENT has never been a frequent winner but he seems to have been revitalised by a change in tactics of late and followed up his Bath win in this tougher contest, again without the visor, with a bit in hand. Having the rail may have been an advantage but the runner-up had plenty of time to get by had he been good enough and, given he did it all without recourse to the whip, a third win on the trot couldn't be ruled out. Crown Counsel looked to have every chance but he couldn't pick up in the same manner as he had at Haydock last time in a more strongly run race. For all he seemed beaten on merit, his upward curve this year has been somewhat haphazard and there's every chance he'll bounce back and move forward again at some stage. Inef had won over 1m11½f at Folkestone last time and ran here as though stronger gallop or a return to a longer trip would have been in his favour, while Young Dottie might not have run up to her Polytrack form on her first run since February but at least showed she can handle easy turf. She's A Character might bebetter suited by faster ground but was never well placed as the race was run, comments which also apply to Kentish. Song To The Moon had been pot hunting in weaker races but was readily put in his place back in a handicap in his bid for a four-timer. bQUOTES:Trainer Michael Attwater: "Salient didn't get much credit for his win at Bath, but it's given him confidence. JP [Guillambert] got on really well with him here. You have to keep pushing and pushing, but he barely picked up the stick. ".

An ordinary fillies handicap run at a good pace and the winner looks open to a bit more improvement. TOTTHEENDOFTHEEARTH didn't obviously go handicapping off a lenient mark but the booking of Ryan Moore looked significant and she scored gamely, probably deriving extra credit considering she was much closer to the good pace early on than the pair that chased her home. By Hurricane Run, she'll most likely be just as effective at 1m2f and her win suggests that her Salisbury conqueror Mundana is probably very well treated off her current mark of 78. Hurricane Lady looked well treated still despite a 3lb rise for her latest win and briefly threatened to rack up the hat-trick when edging to the front briefly inside the last. Even so, this was another career best effort from one probably best kept to around this trip for now. Flying Phoenix hadn't been progressing for William Haggas but a change of scenery, first-time blinkers and being held up well off a strong pace all contributed to a revival, one which might continue again if she's stepped back up to 1m2f next time. Wishformore got the stronger gallop here than she had at Newbury last time but was slightly disappointing in view of that, being readily put in her place. National Hope had her tongue tied but it didn't help her rediscover her form even if she did give the impression she'd have been happier back at 7f. Pandora might still have needed this on only her second run since her sole winning 2-y-o start buther cause wasn't helped either by being kept closest to the strong early pace and she's probably in better form than she's been able to show this season. Red Yarn was given something of a suicidal ride in front and not surprisingly didn't see her race out. She's probably better at 7f anyway. QUOTES: Trainer Sylvester Kirk: "Totheendoftheearth disappointed at Salisbury last time but this was a nice performance and I still like her. Ryan said to stick to the mile for now although she will get further. ".

The withdrawal of Ours took something away from this handicap, but it was still competitive enough. There was a solid pace on and the form should work out. TOTO SKYLLACHY won his second race from his last three outings with a ready effort under his big weight. He found the race run much to his liking, biding his time off the strong pace, and found plenty when asked for his effort on the outer nearing 1f out. It was just his third outing for the yard and his versatility regards underfoot conditionsshould continue to hold him in decent stead this term. Mark Johnston has few peers at placing 3-y-os to win against their elders in handicaps and his two previous runners in this event, both that age, had been placed. His Old English, running under new ownership, had been gelded during his 97-day absence but was a market drifter on this turf debut. However, he ran a decent race from the front and rates better than the bare form, so this is an outing he should build on. I Confess was chasinga five-timer on this return to turf and debut for new connections. He was never far away back up in trip, but lacked the required gear change and was comfortably held. The run may bring him on a little. Bolodenka tired late on after being rushed up to hassle the runner-up 3f out and would have benefited from a more patient ride. Shadowtime was strongly supported to follow up his recent C&D success despite being 4lb higher. However, he proved too free for his own good and ran well below par as a result. Although hitting his head on the stalls cannot have helped. QUOTES: Ollie Pears: "Toto Skyllachy was very disappointing at Carlisle last time, but the race perhaps came a bit quick on him as he'd had a ten-month break before his previous run. He seems to like it here, and I'll look for another race here for him. ".

A fair pace for this 66-85 handicap. NIGHT LILY is a fair performer on the AW, where her mark is in the mid-90s, and proved capable of capitalizing on a turf mark that had dropped to an attractive 78. She had to dig deep to come out on top, but kept finding for her rider’s urgings. Judging by the manner of this success she’ll be worth another try over further. Cono Zur responded well when his rider kicked on over 2f out. He got collared in the final stride but this rates a good effort. Marjury Daw is nicely weighted at present, if a little frustrating, but this was a solid effort and a step back in the right direction. Oriental Scot, back to a mile, stayed on from the rear but could never find the pace to get on terms. Spectait ran well enough off top-weight, although was only one-paced under pressure. High Five Society has been in great form of late in claimers and came here seeking a hat-trick back in handicaps. He raced keenly tracking the leaders and had little more to offer entering the final furlong. Sir George continues to struggle to find his form. [TM] QUOTES: Trainer Paul d’Arcy: “Night Lily needs fast ground to be seen at her best and conditions were perfect. She’s capable of winning again I would say. ”.

A 71-84 handicap run at a very strong pace. JONNY LESTERS HAIR, a winner three times in 2010, has slipped to a mark 6lb below his last success. He worked his way to the front and kept up the gallop in relentless fashion to forge clear in the closing stages. He stays 1m2f and is proving a grand servant. Hacienda, a stone higher in the ratings this time last year, bounced back after some indifferent efforts - hallmark of inmates of this yard. He won three times last year, but whether he reproduces this back-to-form effort next time remains to be seen. Ginger Jack, a winner four times for Mark Johnston in 2010, has slipped to a mark 3lb below his last success. Well supported, he was the only one of the first four home to make significant ground from the rear. He is back on song and worth noting. Haydock maiden race winner Mujrayaat looked to have been let in from a lenient 83 on his handicap bow. He lay up with the pace but was under strong pressure and going nowhere with over 2f to run. He still looks inexperienced and may atone in due course. Bolodenka, fourth behind Toto Skyllyachy here, met that horse on 7lb better terms. He reversed the placings without ever threatening. Toto Skyllyachy, winner twice from three starts since joining this yard, had to race from a 5lb higher mark and could never take a hand. QUOTES: Jockey David Allan said: "Jonny Lesters Hair runs well from the front and he is back to a nice handicap mark. He didn't run any sort of raceat Ripon last time - we have no idea why. " (WG).

Slowly into stride and steadied, held up last, shaken up and well behind in straight, no progress (op 11-2 tchd 4-1)

A fair handicap but, although the gallop seemed reasonable, those held up were at a disadvantage. YOU’VE BEEN MOWED is a regular winner who showed a fine attitude from a career-high mark to make it win number three for the year. A further rise will leave her vulnerable against the better handicapped or more unexposed sorts but she should continue to run well when allowed to dominate. Well-backed market leader and course-and-distance winner Super Duplex got a good tow into the race and ranup to his best. He is a versatile sort who doesn’t have much in hand of his mark but should continue to give a good account. Battle Of Britain can be rated a couple of lengths better than the bare form given he was hampered at a crucial stage (promoted to third). It is most unlikely he would have beaten the winner with a clear passage but he’s capable of going in again when things pan out. Course-and-distance winner Cross Culture wasn’t disgraced from this 4lb higher mark after being ideally placed throughout but he is going to have to settle better than he has been doing and it was no surprise he was demoted a place after causing interference to Battle Of Britain. With Hindsight, having his first run over this trip, could never land a blow in a race that suited the prominent-racers but he didn’t seem to fail through lack of stamina and he should be able to pick up a small event away from progressive types. Song To The Moon, a half-sister to the smart Charles The Great anda triple winner (including over course-and-distance) early in summer but proved a disappointment, even allowing for the fact that this race wasn’t run to suit and the fact he was eased late on. He’s worth another chance. [RY] QUOTES: Trainer Richard Price: “We thought the track would suit You’ve Been Mowed and I put Matthew on to take some weight off as she had top-weight but she is tough as nails and getting stronger. ”.

Just a fair handicap. UNCLE FRED burst through once a gap appeared inside the final furlong. He was only 1lb higher than when winning over C&D in April, but will obviously climb the weights again. Pat’s Legacy has already developed something ofan inconsistent profile, the removal of blinkers which clearly didn’t work last time helping. Elna Bright had been struggling over shorter trips and seemed more at home returned to this distance, dictating at his own tempo. Things didn’t pan out for Jewelled, who had to wait for a run and then short of room when keeping on inside the final furlong. She arguably should have been involved in the finish and can rate better than the bare form. Mahadee was probably flattered to finish so close,while Santefisio would have been closer with more luck in his run. [MB].

This fair handicap was blown wide open by the defection of the heavily backed Viva Vettori. It was run at an uneven pace and it paid to race handily. The first pair dominated inside the final furlong and STARWATCH dug deep to emerge on top. The winner was another 3lb higher in this quest for the hat-trick and had stamina to prove, but this was by no means a severe test. He was produced at just the right time and there was an awful lot to like about his attitude late on. He did take some time to pull up, so the longer trip goes down as being a positive for him, and he shouldn't be taken lightly when bidding for a fourth straight success despite another likely rise. The grey Ree's Rascal was better than the bare form at Epsom on his latest outing and goes well here. He was given a decent ride in defeat and simply bumped into a more resolute rival. He deserves to get his head back in front. C&D winner Rustic Deacon was bidding to get back on track after badly disappointing in his hat-trick bid at Ripon. He got very much the run of the race out in front and couldn't quicken sufficiently when pressed by the first pair. Perhaps the handicapper now has his measure. Hurricane Spirit was never near enough to land a serious blow, but this was his most encouraging display for a while. Orientalist has fallen in the handicap as a result of losing form this term, but was heavily backed to come good again. His fate was apparent from halfway due to the uneven pace, however, and he could never challenge. He was keeping on towards the finish and should be kept on side next time. [DO].

This race was hit hard with half the declared field non-runners. The early pace was only steady and didn't increase until around 3f from home. JIWEN was making her handicap debut after a narrow success in a Nottingham maiden. She was allowed to dominate from the start and, although briefly challenged by the third horse entering the last 3f, had little difficulty in seeing her off and galloped on strongly to the line. She still displayed a few signs of greenness and looks the type to carry on improving. Jewelled, possibly unlucky not to make it three wins from her last four starts at Windsor last time, was settled in last place and looked the first beaten when caught for toe coming to the last 3f, but she plugged on into second if never a threat to the winner. She may be better over a shorter trip on quicker ground. Golden Slipper was having her first start for the yard and making her handicap debut after finishing third behind two subsequent winners in a Windsor maiden. She looked a real threat to the winner inside the last 3f, but her effort petered out rather tamely. Midas Moment, returning from another absence, paid the penalty for taking a fierce hold early. [DB] QUOTES: David Eustace, assistant Roger Varian, trainer of Jiwen: "We decided to make the running as there was no front-runner and we think she'll get further. ".

The going was changed to good, good to soft in places. In an interesting handicap they shifted to the near rail in the straight and the most exposed runner in the line-up scored in gritty style. WEAPON OF CHOICE was well below form on fast ground at Newmarket last time and he looked to have some work to do in a race littered with less-exposed/last-time-out winners, but the arrival of rain was a positive and he hit the front early in the straight before toughing it out to add to his dominant win off 2lb lower on good to soft at Newcastle two runs back. Shalloon, a runaway odds-on winner in 1m Ripon maiden last time, was solid in the market and put in a brave bid, but was just denied on his handicap debut. A very lightly rated 160,000gns colt, he has plenty of 1m prowess in his pedigree and quite a bit of potential for further improvement. John Biscuit got back on track when staying on strongly for third in a 1m Sandown handicap last time. He was well backed on the return to the scene of his 7f debut win last August, but compromised his chance by racing keenly and his strong finishing kick was missing this time. Regal Salute found a big jolt of improvement when powering clear from an older rival on her 1m handicap debut at Windsor last time. A big drifter in an attempt to defy a 10lb higher mark, she set the pace but had no answer to the closers. Uptown Guy hit a new form high when scoring with plenty in hand under a hold-up ride in a 1m Thirsk handicap last week. He was a solid favourite in a bid to overcome a penalty but blew his chance by standing still and forfeiting plenty of ground when the stalls opened. Iulus showed improvement on his second start when overhauling a 72-rated favourite in 1m1f Carlisle maiden, but this big galloping type was one of the first under pressure and didn't look very comfortable on this idiosyncratic track. [DM] QUOTES: Jennie Simcock, wife of winning trainer David Simcock: "I think the little bit of rain is probably the biggest key for Weapon Of Choice. The ground was too quick for him last time when he ran with the choke out and didn't finish. ".

This looked a real war of attrition in the closing stages after what looked a reasonable gallop set by PAT'S LEGACY, which makes his gutsy finishing effort all the more commendable. He looked in trouble when headed and challenged on all sides entering the final furlong but he found another surge to get back in front close home. On this evidence he looks worth a try over further and he's got plenty of US form on an all-weather surface, so connections will have plenty of options for him over the winter if they want to keep him racing. Osgood doesn't win very often but both his successes have come on soft ground, so conditions were in his favour. He bounced back from two disappointing runs and is only 2lb higher than his last handicap win. Starwatch has been making hay recently but the combination of another 6lb rise on testing ground proved too much for him. He probably deserves a break now. Vimiero was dropping back in trip and didn't have the pace to make an impact at the business end. However, not many Dynaformers go on soft ground so it's unlikely conditions were a help to him. He is still not fully exposed and can do better back on a sound surface. Cultural Desert was reported to have run too freely and Prince of Sorrento was reported slowly away. [GB QUOTES: Trainer Jo Hughes: "Pat's Legacy doesn't want running too quickly as he is very game and puts everything into it, so we'll look for a race in a couple of weeks. ".

An ordinary handicap and the pace looked modest despite a contested lead. A typical Epsom finish, with plenty meeting trouble and horses hanging all over the place. ORIENTALIST had mainly struggled since completing a hat-trick a year ago, but he ran better last time and is now 17lb lower than at this time last year. Always handy, he may well have won this by denying his nearest rival daylight when he needed it over a furlong from home, even though he still had to dig deep to get the better of the runner-up in a driving finish. Now that he has regained his form, it wouldn't be the biggest surprise to see him go in again. Whitby Jet was a disappointing favourite off this mark at Newmarket last time (6lb higher than when winning at Brighton the time before), but bounced back to form here and may have been a bit unlucky. He was held in by the winner when trying to extricate himself from a gap over a furlong out and, although he was through in plenty of time and had every chance, he had arguablyalready lost more ground (and impetus) than he was beaten by. Danehill Dante, placed in four of five starts in maidens, was disappointing on his handicap debut last time but was well backed to make amends here. He didn't handle Tattenham Corner too well, but was still produced to hold every chance a furlong out before weakening. Cat Hunter has gone well here before, but had an eventful journey this time, missing the break, then enjoying a charmed run against the inside rail to lead 2f from home, and finally getting badly hampered against the inside rail after being headed inside the last furlong. She is now 0-15 on turf and this trip looks right on the edge of her stamina. Botanist, lightly raced and disappointing for Sir Michael Stoute over the past two years, was picked up by current connections for 10,000gns but he didn't show enough here to suggest he has turned the corner. Green Earth needs faster ground, but he endured a nightmare run from the 3f pole and it's probably best to put a line through this. [DB].

The time of this second division was 0. 33 seconds slower than the first. IRON STEP, up 4lb for an all-the-way victory at Kempton, had already won twice on turf as well and he confirmed himself to be a progressive 3yo with this authoritative display. This looks his best trip and he deserves a crack at something better now. Moone's My Name, a three-time 7f winner on turf, was always prominent and kept on right the way to the line, bouncing back from a rare poor effort at Sandown. This trip isclearly no problem for her and she remains capable of better. Bakoura looked a likely improver for the slightly longer trip, but actually took too long to pick up. Perhaps a more prominent ride in future will help. Amethyst Dawn ran up to something like her best, doing well considering she was squaring off against a field of less exposed 3yos. Present Danger may have been unhappy on the ground and can be given another chance. Little Curtsey refused to settle and failed to run up to anything like her best. [MB] QUOTES: Trainer Nicky Vaughan: "Iron Step is versatile when it comes to ground and he goes on the all weather, so we may well carry on with him over the rest of the autumn. ".

Tracked leaders, struggling 3f out, soon beaten, tailed off (op 4-1)

There was good support for the lightly raced NEUTRAFA and clearly she was expected to handle conditions just fine. Travelling best early in the straight, she had only to be nudged to draw clear of the rest and, while her rider had to get more seriousinside the last, she always had plenty in hand over the runner-up. She is one step ahead of the handicapper and could do better again as a 4yo. Persian Herald handles these conditions without any problem and stays further as well. He got a little outpaced at the top of the straight but kept on well to chase home the less-exposed and well-handicapped winner. Triple Eight, wearing cheekpieces for the first time, plugged on after being headed but these conditions were probably not ideal, and the same can probably be said for Retreat Content, while Goldenveil didn't go a yard and seemingly hated the ground. [SE] QUOTES: John Mackie, trainer of Neutrafa: "She went on the ground and will have a holiday now until next year. ".
